In fact Mr. Plyna cannot pass a bill through the committee, even of which he is a member, without in some asy providing for the indian territory. I offered a fair compromise, as I thought, and as many toembers thought, and that was to throw the lines of Oklahoma clear around the lands of the five tribes and make at a part ands of the five tribes and make it a part containing the provision that i have men-tioned. His bill is not as strong as it would have been had it included the proposed compromise. We were not satisfied and of course our friends in the house and senute are not. When his bill casebes the house, Mr. Stephens of Texas will cheve to substitute his single statehood bill for it on the door, unless some changes takes place before that time.

Every member of the committee on ter-stories of the house agreed that we were utilled to and would get some sort of relief this meason. The committee on In-dian affairs are of the same opinion. There are three bills looking toward re-lief for us and new pendlan. The Moon hall, the Curris bill and the Scott bill. The full has been ordered reported but so amended that its sires would not recog-tice it. It provides for a sort of sketcton government. It does not divide the country into countles, but governs us a next of legislature government, apportioning the members of the council and house among the different nations. The Scott bill is in the hands of a sub-committee of the house indian committee. the house Indian committee, compassed of Sherman, Cuttie and Little. from death of a little girl in that city as follows:

J. S. Veazey and children, since the death of Mrs. Veazey, last week, are living with a family opposite the postoffice. Lists Saturday the little bey, five years old, was playing with a pet wolf that was in the yard back of the hospital. The bey was on the outside of the fence and was tensing the wolf by punching it with a steek through a crack in the fence. Presently the wolf became so caraged that it jumped over the fence and dashed after the boy, who ran for the house. The boy's little sister, aged three years, had followed her brother out in the street and the boy ran past her on to the house. The wolf, failing to eatch the boy, attacked the little girl, billing her severely on the back of the neck and head. Mr. Veazey had come out to look for the child and got to it about the same time the wolf did, and but for his prompt actions the little one would have been forn to pieces. As it was, the fieth and scalp were hadly torn but no serious lajury inflicted. The hospital surgeons dressed the little one's wearshand the wolf was disparatched.
